Extra Credit

Extra Credit will be accepted at any time during the semester for essays on journal articles found on the web. Each essay should be approximately one page typed (12 pt font, double-spaced), and should describe the journal article you found. Journal articles can be about any type of sleep disorder, and should be based on research performed no earlier than 1998. If your article is based on research performed earlier than 1998, you must also compare and contrast it with research performed after 1998. Each essay must include the URL (internet address) where the journal article was found. Essays are worth up to 5 points each. The more detailed your essay and the more work you put into it, the more credit you will receive. However, please do not write essays longer than 2 pages. As many as 5 extra credit essays will be accepted throughout the semester, for a possible 25 extra credit points. This can raise your final grade as much as 5%. All extra credit essays can be emailed to me or handed to me in class, and are due by 11:59pm the night of the final exam. No late work will be accepted for extra credit.

Late Work

Please complete your assignments on time. Late work will be docked 10% for each 24-hour period that it is late. Any assignments that are one week late or later will not be accepted for credit. All quizzes are unannounced, and are to encourage attendance. Therefore, quizzes must be taken the day they are assigned, and cannot be taken late.

If you know in advance that you must miss class, please let me know. Exams should not be taken late. If you miss an exam without prior notification, you will not get credit for that exam. If you give prior notification that you will need to miss an exam, an alternate form of the test may be given to you if the instructor deems it necessary.
